SOMETHING WE DIDN’T KNOW

20 MILLION TONS – the weight of the average iceberg

Edward George Honey (18 September 1885 – 25 August 1922) was an Australian journalist who suggested the idea of five minutes of silence in a letter to a London newspaper in May 1919, about 6 months before the first observance of the two-minute silence in London.

Keith’s new milling machine seems to have put a smile on his face. What a way to start the new year.
From the Editor ….

Welcome back to all members. Hope you have had a great festive season and may your New Year be filled with joy tinkering with old machinery. And don’t forget that your projects, stories, pictures and classifieds are WANTED for inclusion in your Newsletter … Dorothy

WANTED

A 32v generating unit and switch board (used in the 20’s or 30’s on farms) for my next restoration project.

Phone Steve on 0439 877 362

A web of intrigue … This St Andrews Cross spider had us spellbound for a few days with its lovely web … Dorothy
